

MOAA's Chapter Membership Drive

5 Good Reasons to Join MOAA (and a whole lot more)

You know the value of belonging to MOAA. But when you're talking to a potential new member, it's important to remember that many officers only know MOAA by name. This is your chance to sell new recruits on MOAA membership and overcome their objections.

Here are five good reasons for any officers—active duty, Guard, Reserve, former, or retired—or their surviving spouse—to join MOAA today:

1. There's strength in numbers. When you join MOAA, you're adding your voice to the largest and most effective officers' association in the country. We're officers just like you. We understand the challenges you face and share your concerns about the future.
2. Meet MOAA members in your community. With more than 400 chapters across the country and abroad, MOAA provides plenty of opportunities for local activities, networking, and camaraderie. And even if you don't have time to get actively involved now, it's good to know MOAA is fighting for you every day in Washington and in our state capitals.
3. Enjoy benefits designed for officers and their families. There are a lot of organizations you can join, but only MOAA offers benefits tailored to your needs; free military benefits counseling, second-career guidance and planning, scholarships for the children of servicemembers attending college, and a supplemental TRICARE health plan.
4. Make yourself heard. Whether you're out there fighting for your country, or have completed your service, MOAA is fighting for you in Washington. As a member, you can join thousands of other members who speak up on issues that affect you directly, from pay to benefits to the hardships of constant deployment.
5. Membership is a bargain.
You'll have access to a whole range of benefits from financial education to discounts on travel, computers, and more. Add to that our monthly magazine, the Military Officer, and you have a membership that more than pays for itself.
